THE DAY IN CONGRESS

DOMINICAN PROBE —

William F. Raborn Jr., director of the Central Intelligence Agency, testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to end the first phase of its inquiry into U.S. involvement in the Dominican Republic crisis.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) said Raborn corroborated previous testimony that the Communists were heavily involved in the Dominican revolt. But the committee chairman, Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), said he has not yet formed a judgment about the extent of Red influence over the rebels.
